

No better time to invest in a quality used combine

Now could be a very good time for farmers and contractors running smaller, older combines to consider upgrading to a higher capacity used combine, according to COMBINE WORLD.

Demand for good quality, used straw walker machines throughout mainland and central Europe remains very healthy, and is reflected in the excellent prices these machines are currently achieving. So owners of an older straw walker combine could be surprised at just how much their combine is actually worth.

“There is probably no better time for owners of smaller, older combines to upgrade, especially to a tracked machine, bearing in mind how wet recent harvests have been,” says Roy Cansdale of COMBINE WORLD. “There is the added advantage that changing your combine now, could also bring tax benefits thanks to the increase in AIA to £250,000 for two years as from the beginning of this year.”

Established in 1989, COMBINE WORLD has grown to become one of the world's leading suppliers of high quality used combines, with total sales now in excess of £371M. With up to 200 combines available at any one time of all colours, sizes and age it makes looking for a used combine a much simpler, risk free task.

COMBINE WORLD is a co-operative of 14 dealers spread across the UK, with 52 outlets between them. The company was set-up to establish a common set of standards for used combines and to provide a single 'shop window' for buyers both home and abroad.

Normally buying from a classified advert can be fraught with potential problems, both in the range and quality of machine offered. To overcome this and provide the buyer with confidence, each member dealer has to work to a strict set of rules governing the appraisal, storage, refurbishment and sale of used combines.

Prior to being offered for sale by COMBINE WORLD, each combine is subjected to a comprehensive 250 point dealer appraisal which will highlight any work that needs to be carried out on the machine prior to sale. Having been appraised, the machines are sold with a unique COMBINE WORLD warranty.

Buying a used combine through a reputable specialist dealer gives the buyer complete confidence in the quality of the machine. In addition, COMBINE WORLD dealers are also able to offer tailor-made finance solutions, enabling payments to be matched to cash-flow, subject to normal conditions.
